

The single most important determinant of the success of any organisation is the quality of its leadership."

Scottish Government's Social Enterprise Strategy.

Being a Chief Executive is a unique opportunity to make a real difference to our communities, society and the future of our planet. Your leadership helps to inspire and galvanise people across your organisation and the wider sector to show up as their best selves to contribute to greater social and environmental impact.

However being a CEO can sometimes feel quite isolated and all-consuming. This programme offers important space and time for you to reflect and think on a strategic level. It provides the opportunity to learn from and with other Chief Executives to gain practical skills that you can apply in your role. Spread over five months, the programme offers a unique opportunity for the group supporting mechanisms for each other's' personal growth and development.

It consists of 10 facilitated learning days delivered in five modules, using a mix of approaches including group-work, peer-coaching, action learning sets, guest speakers and self-reflection.

Building stronger organisations

Against the backdrop of the climate emergency, we are living in times of unprecedented change and uncertainty. Times where, more than ever, we need leaders with authenticity, wisdom, courage and compassion. This programme will support CEOs to develop the mind-set and leadership skills required to respond proactively to challenges and opportunities, helping your organisation and the sector to continue to thrive and become more sustainable.

Using peer-based approaches, you will work with and learn from fellow Senior Leaders to explore a range of practical concepts and approaches that support you as a strategic leader. The programme focuses very much on the practice of leadership at a senior level, helping you to gain greater personal insight, different perspectives and awareness.

Weaved throughout the programme, we will explore the leadership required to help us collectively achieve Scotland's ambition of net-zero emissions by 2045.
